Dear Mr Holland

Thank you for your letter dated 27th July stating that there had been consultation with the local community regarding the footpath network in the Lhanbryde area, and that the signs had been erected following this consultation.

You also mention the Land Reform (Scotland) Act 2003 and that the signage in Walkers Crescent was erected to help people exercise their right to access most lands responsibly. If that is the case, is it responsible to encourage people to use a route which is inherently hazardous. Would Moray Council consider adding a gate to the walkway system which would help ensure the safety of the pedestrians using the system?

I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours sincerely

Moira Gillespie
